Prevention – Early Detection and Timely treatment of cancer: With increased incidence of cancer in India, Government of India has expanded the National Cancer Control Programme with greater emphasis on cancer prevention and early detection through screening for common cancers. There is also a parallel programme for improving the treatment facilities in all the states and in different regions of each state. We take this opportunity to provide information regarding the risk factors, symptoms and signs of the common cancers in our country and how timely screening could save lives.

Cancer Research at ACTREC: Sixty years ago, Prof. Khanolkar, our founding director, laid the foundation of cancer research in the country. Over these years, work at CRI / ACTREC has established the risk factors and genetic alteration in many cancers. Researchers here have studied how some normal cells become cancerous and start uncontrolled multiplication and then develop secondary spread to other organs. At each step, these cells acquire many changes or mutations in some important genes which in turn control the proliferation or apoptosis of these cells. While majority of cancers occur due to life-style factors such as tobacco or some viral infections (HPV), about 5% of cancers are hereditary, occurring due genetic mutations inherited from parents germ cells (Ova or sperm). Research at ACTREC has identified some gene mutations that are particularly common in specific geographical regions or communities in India and result in very high risk of developing hereditary or familial cancers.

This is our small effort to make people aware about this and help you utilize benefits of the link with association to save someone's life.
